

REPORTING ILLICIT DISCHARGE AND ILLEGAL DUMPING

The term “Illicit Discharge” is defined by the EPA as any discharge to a municipal separate storm sewer that is not composed entirely of storm water. Fort Campbell's storm sewers drain directly to nearby water bodies.

Illicit discharges can be categorized as either direct or indirect.

An example of a direct illicit discharge:

- a. materials (used motor oil) that have been dumped illegally into a storm drain.

An example of an indirect illicit discharges (illicit connections) an old and damaged sanitary sewer line that is leaking fluids into a storm sewer.

An “illicit connection” is a pipe or hose leading to a storm sewer drain, which results in a non-stormwater discharge. As a result of this type of connection , contaminants such as wastewater enters into the storm drain system.

The Stormwater Program asks anyone who witnesses or knows about illegal discharges and or illegal dumping into storm drains to report the incident.
